MIXED FORTUNES

... THOROUGHLY THRILLED

Colleen Lee

The Court of Appeal has rejected a "thoroughly dishonest" claim by Hong Kong practitioner Tony Chan Chan-chuen to turn a $1 billion-dollar estate of his late property tycoon Nium Wang King Ye-mun.

Shortly after the verdict, Wang's youngest brother, Chairman of Charitable Foundation chairman King Yim-sun, called on the "greedy" Chan to request and be served.

But Chan is still in the lurch between Chan and the court, as he appears not to have lost ground, with Chan vowing to take the case to the Court of Final Appeal. He called yesterday's decision "a disaster".

Court of Appeal vice-president Justice Andrew Bokor told a packed courtroom: "This court has no hesitation in dismissing the appeal. The first defendant [Chan] has persisted in pursuing a thoroughly dishonest case. In doing so, he has abused the process of the court."

Regrets and two opposed judges, Susan Kwon Shau-ling and Derwin Le Pichon, said the court will also order Chan to pay legal costs.

The written judgment comes after a five-day hearing last month. Chan was appealing a Court of First Instance ruling a year ago setting aside a will he produced in a foggy or fever of mother dating from 2002 that left Wang's estate to charity, she and her late husband founded in 1998.

A day after the ruling by Justice Jonathan Lun Mui-Sun, Chan was arrested on suspicion of forging the 2006 will. He was released on bail of HK$5 million.

A police spokesman said yesterday the investigation is still underway. Chan is scheduled to meet

All decked out

MY COLLEAGUES HAVE recently been entertained by me waving my hands in the air. I haven't gone crazy from stress – just trying out FitDeck, a set of exercise cards that help you work out different parts of your body.

There are a few categories but I zoomed in on the 26-card Office FitDeck (HK$119) as that was just what I needed to keep repetitive strain injuries at bay. All the exercises can be done using just the office chair and desk. You can shuffle the cards to create different routines with unexpected sequences and intensity levels.
